Raleigh-Durham, Look Out for Low Fares! Spirit Airlines Grows

Network into North Carolina's Research Triangle

MIRAMAR, Fla., January 15, 2019 – Raleigh, are you ready? Durham, do you dare to venture farther? Now even more North Carolinians can get away for less, as Spirit Airlines announces it is bringing its low fares and signature service to the Research Triangle! Beginning May 2, 2019, Spirit (NYSE: SAVE) will launch nonstop daily service from Raleigh-Durham International Airport (RDU) to Baltimore/Washington, Boston, Chicago, Detroit, Fort Lauderdale, New Orleans, and Orlando. The new routes will also create dozens of connections to other destinations in the United States, as well as the Caribbean and Latin America. Raleigh-Durham will mark Spirit's third destination in the Tar Heel State, joining the Piedmont Triad and Asheville currently served by the airline.

"We are excited to bring our low fares and reliable, on-time service to the Raleigh-Durham International Airport just in time for summer travel season," said Matt Klein, Spirit Airlines' Senior Vice President and Chief Commercial Officer. "From families looking to get away, to the college community in need of a study break, Spirit's eight daily flights from the Research Triangle will allow our Guests to get to some of the largest destinations in Spirit's network, including those in the Caribbean and Latin America."

"We are happy to welcome Spirit Airlines, the newest airline to join RDU and the Research Triangle community. Spirit offers area travelers another option when they fly for both business and leisure," said Michael Landguth, Raleigh-Durham Airport Authority President and Chief Executive Officer.
